

WESTERN OREGON TRIBAL FAIRNESS ACT

JULY 11, 2017.—Committed to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union and ordered to be printed

Mr. BISHOP of Utah, from the Committee on Natural Resources, submitted the following

REPORT

[To accompany H.R. 1306]

[Including cost estimate of the Congressional Budget Office]

The Committee on Natural Resources, to whom was referred the bill (H.R. 1306) to provide for the conveyance of certain Federal land in the State of Oregon, and for other purposes, having considered the same, report favorably thereon without amendment and recommend that the bill do pass.

PURPOSE OF THE BILL

The purpose of H.R. 1306 is to provide for the conveyance of certain Federal land in the State of Oregon.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

The three tribes that benefit from H.R. 1306 were originally recognized under various treaties or Acts of Congress. In the 1950s and 1960s, Congress enacted a number of laws to terminate the federal reservations and recognition of various tribes, including the Cow Creek, Coos, and Coquille tribes. The federal recognition of the tribes was later restored by Congress, and provision made for the acquisition of lands in trust for their benefit. The tribes, however, do not possess the reservations that had originally been granted to them, and there have been various efforts, including those represented in H.R. 1306, to increase their current trust land base.

Various iterations of H.R. 1306 have been considered multiple times in previous Congresses. Nearly identical bills benefiting some or all of these tribes were passed by the House of Representatives twice in the 113th and once in the 114th Congresses.¹

Title I: Cow Creek Umpqua Land Conveyance

The Cow Creek Umpqua Tribe and its reservation are located in Canyonville, Oregon, along Interstate 5. The Tribe was the second in the State to sign a treaty with the United States in 1853, a treaty ratified by the U.S. Senate in 1854. According to the Tribe, its ancestral lands included territory between the Cascade Mountains and the Coast Ranges in southwestern Oregon along the South Umpqua River and its primary feeder stream, Cow Creek.

The 1854 treaty with the Cow Creek outlined that the Tribe would cede 800 square miles of reservation land in exchange for $12,000 for goods and services spanning several years; however, the stipulations of the treaty were never realized. In 1953 the United States formally terminated the Tribe through the Western Oregon Indian Termination Act of 1954 (Public Law 588, Chapter 733, 68 Stat. 724). This Act also terminated several other tribes in Oregon.

In the decades following its termination, the Tribe continued to stay in its homelands. In 1982, federal recognition of the Tribe was restored by Public Law 97–391. By 1984 the Tribe had successfully negotiated a $1.5 million settlement in the U.S. Court of Claims for tribal land lost in the treaty. The Tribe invested the settlement amount to establish an endowment fund and has only drawn interest annually to provide education, housing, and economic development. Today the Tribe has approximately 4,471 acres of land held in trust. The Tribe has used this land to operate the tribal government and tribally-owned businesses, which include Umpqua Indian Foods, the Seven Feathers Casino and Resort, the Umpqua Business Center, and the K Bar Ranch. These enterprises are operated by an IRS Section 17 tribal charter corporation, the Umpqua Indian Development Corporation.

H.R. 1306 would place title to approximately 17,519 acres of public land in Oregon in trust for the benefit of the Cow Creek Umpqua Tribe. Lands to be held in trust under Title I are depicted on a specific map, and the conveyance of the land in trust shall be subject to valid existing rights.

A substantial amount of the public land placed in trust for the tribe under Title I is currently part of the Oregon and California Railroad land grant (O&C Land), managed by the Bureau of Land Management. Under Title I, the Secretary of the Interior is required to reclassify as O&C Land an equal amount of public domain land located in the vicinity of the land conveyed to the Tribe.

Land placed in trust for the Tribe under Title I may not be used for gambling under the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act (25 U.S.C 2701 et seq.), and timber harvested from such land shall be subject to federal law restricting the export of unprocessed logs.

Title II: Oregon Coastal Land Conveyance

The Confederated Tribes of Coos, Lower Umpqua, and Siuslaw Indians are the aboriginal inhabitants of the central and south-central coast of Oregon. After initial contact with fur traders in the early 1800s, these tribes along the Oregon coast negotiated a treaty with the United States in 1855; however, the treaty was never ratified nor the terms fully realized. For the next 50 years many tribes in Oregon endured an uphill struggle.

In 1940, six acres were bestowed to the tribes by a non-Indian; later these lands were placed into trust by the Department of the Interior. These six acres, which constituted the Tribes' reservation, are located approximately 100 miles southwest of Eugene, Oregon.

In 1954 the Tribes, along with several other tribes in Oregon, were terminated pursuant to Public Law 588 (Chapter 733, 68 Stat. 724), effective August 1956. However, in 1984 the Tribes' federal recognition was restored by Public Law 98-481. Under that Act, approximately 1.02 acres in Coos County, Oregon, and several other counties, were placed into trust for the establishment as a reservation for the Tribes. In 1998, Congress placed an additional tract of land into trust for the Tribes under Public Law 105-256.

Today, the Tribes have 153 acres held in trust by the United States. Over the years the Tribes have acquired land through donations and purchases, including 98 acres of restored land along Highway 126 in Florence, Oregon, where the Three Rivers casino is located.

The parcels transferred under Title II are located in western Oregon's Coos, Douglas, Benton, and Lane Counties, and include tracts such as the Coos Head, Talbot Allotment, and Umpqua Eden parcels, which are of particular cultural significance to the Tribes, as well as areas such as the Lower Smith River and Tioga tracts managed for timber production.

Title III: Amendments to Coquille Restoration Act

The Coquille Indian Tribe is located in Coos Bay/North Bend, Oregon, on the southern coast.

After negotiating but failing to ratify a treaty with the Coquille in the 1850s, the United States sought to forcibly relocate the Coquille people to the Coast (Siletz) Reservation. A number of families, however, resisted relocation and stayed on their aboriginal lands. Others escaped from their confinement on the Coast Reservation to return to their ancestral homelands. The homelands they returned to were in the process of irrevocable alteration.

Federal policies targeting the Coquille and other Oregon tribes continued to have a negative impact on the Coquille people and culture. In 1954 as part of the a federal policy to terminate federal relations with a number of tribes, the United States terminated the federal recognition of the Coquille Indian Tribe through Public Law 588 (Chapter 733, 68 Stat. 724).

In 1989, the Coquille Restoration Act (25 U.S.C. 715 et seq.) restored federal recognition of the Coquille Tribe and directed the Secretary of the Interior to develop a plan for the Tribe's self-sufficiency. The Secretary later adopted a plan that has as its self-described "cornerstone" the restoration of 59,000 acres of the Tribe's ancestral lands (25 U.S.C. 715b). For a multitude of reasons, the Secretary ultimately transferred only one tenth of the amount required by the Self-Sufficiency Plan (5410 acres). These lands are referred to as the "Coquille Forest."

The Coquille Restoration Act additionally provides that the Secretary of the Interior, acting through the Assistant Secretary for Indian Affairs, shall manage the Coquille Forest under applicable State and federal forestry and environmental protection laws, subject to critical habitat designations under the Endangered Species Act of 1973 (16 U.S.C. 1531 et seq.) and subject to the “standards and guidelines” of federal forest plans on adjacent or nearby federal lands.

Coquille tribal forestlands generate timber revenues that are an essential component of the Tribe’s and Congress’s goals of Coquille tribal self-governance. Reasonably consistent and predictable timber revenues are critical for the successful planning and management of Tribal programs, as well as providing employment for Tribal members and members of the local community, in both direct and indirect ways.

Unlike other tribal trust forestlands in the United States, the Coquille tribal forestlands are statutorily required, pursuant to the Coquille Forest Act (25 U.S.C. 715c), to meet additional burdens of complying with the standards and guidelines of adjacent federal lands. Essentially, adjacent federal land managers write most of the management prescriptions for the Coquille Forest.

This statutory requirement negatively impacts the Tribe by reducing the land available for timber harvest from 5140 acres to 3401 acres. In addition, the linkage to other federal forestlands has invited repeated appeals and litigation against the Department of the Interior in attempts to block or severely restrict timber management on tribal forestlands. The delays and costs of these efforts adversely affect the Tribe.

The problem is further compounded by the current revision of the management plan for federal lands adjacent to the Coquille Forest. If the Bureau of Land Management changes the management scheme for those adjacent lands, it could result in greater management restrictions on Coquille Forest lands.

Timber on tribal lands is generally subject to laws and regulations implemented by the Department of the Interior, including the National Indian Forest Resources Management Act (25 U.S.C. 3101 et seq.). Title III of H.R. 1306 would require the Department of the Interior to manage the Coquille Forest in accordance with laws pertaining to the management of Indian trust land.

COMMITTEE ACTION

H.R. 1306 was introduced on March 2, 2017, by Congressman Peter A. DeFazio (D-OR). The bill was referred to the Committee on Natural Resources, and within the Committee to the Subcommittee on Indian, Insular and Alaska Native Affairs and the Subcommittee on Federal Lands. On June 22, 2017, the Full Natural Resources Committee met to consider the bill. The Subcommittee on Indian, Insular and Alaska Native Affairs and the Subcommittee on Federal Lands were discharged by unanimous consent. No amendments were offered and the bill was ordered favorably reported to the House of Representatives by unanimous consent on June 27, 2017.

COMMITTEE OVERSIGHT FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Regarding clause 2(b)(1) of rule X and clause 3(c)(1) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee on Natural Resources' oversight findings and recommendations are reflected in the body of this report.

COMPLIANCE WITH HOUSE RULE XIII AND CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET ACT

1. Cost of Legislation and the Congressional Budget Act. With respect to the requirements of clause 3(c)(2) and (3) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives and sections 308(a) and 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the Committee has received the following estimate for the bill from the Director of the Congressional Budget Office:

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, July 5, 2017.

Hon. ROB BISHOP
Chairman, Committee on Natural Resources, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate for H.R. 1306, the Western Oregon Tribal Fairness Act.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The CBO staff contact is Robert Reese.

Sincerely,

KEITH HALL.

Enclosure.

H.R. 1306—Western Oregon Tribal Fairness Act

H.R. 1306 would convey federally owned portions of Oregon and California Railroad grant lands in the state of Oregon to local Indian tribes—about 17,500 acres to the Cow Creek Band of Umpqua Tribe of Indians and about 14,700 acres to the Confederated Tribes of Coos, Lower Umpqua, and Siuslaw Indians. The bill would then require that the Department of the Interior (DOI) locate a similar amount of land in the public domain and reclassify that land as Oregon and California Railroad grant land. Finally, the bill would amend how the federal government manages forest land held in trust for the benefit of the Coquille Tribe of Coos County, Oregon.

Under current law, the lands specified for conveyance generate federal receipts from the sale of timber, which are treated as reductions in direct spending; those receipts are not available to be spent without further appropriation. The government currently retains about 50 percent of the total receipts earned from Oregon and California Railroad grant lands and 96 percent of receipts earned on lands in the public domain. Thus, conveying the land to the tribes and reclassifying other federal lands would reduce such receipts and increase direct spending.

Based on an analysis of information provided by DOI about the value of timber harvested on those properties, CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 1306 would increase net direct spending by $5 million over the 2018–2027 period. Those changes in outlays, which are subject to pay-as-you-go procedures are shown in the following table. Enacting H.R. 1306 would not affect revenues and implementing the bill would have no significant effect on spending subject to appropriation.

CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 1306 would not increase net direct spending or on-budget deficits by more than $5 billion in any of the four consecutive 10-year periods beginning in 2028.

H.R. 1306 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act. The bill would benefit the Cow Creek Band of Umpqua Tribe and the Confederate Tribes of Coos, Lower Umpqua, and Siuslaw Indians by transferring federal land into trust for those tribes.

On May 30, 2017, CBO transmitted a cost estimate for S. 508, the Western Oregon Tribal Fairness Act, as ordered reported by the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources on March 30, 2017. The two bills are similar and CEO's estimates of the budgetary effects are the same.

The CEO staff contacts for this estimate are Robert Reese (for federal costs) and Rachel Austin (for intergovernmental mandates). The estimate was approved by Theresa Gullo, Assistant Director for Budget Analysis.

2. General Performance Goals and Objectives. As required by clause 3(c)(4) of rule XIII, the general performance goal or objective of this bill is to provide for the conveyance of certain Federal land in the State of Oregon.

EARMARK STATEMENT

This bill does not contain any Congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits as defined under clause 9(e), 9(f), and 9(g) of Rule XXI of the Rules of the House of Representatives.

COMPLIANCE WITH PUBLIC LAW 104–4

This bill contains no unfunded mandates.

COMPLIANCE WITH H. RES. 5

Directed Rule Making. This bill does not contain any directed rule makings.

Duplication of Existing Programs. This bill does not establish or reauthorize a program of the federal government known to be duplicative of another program. Such agreement may provide for the tribe to carry out all or a portion of the forest management for the Coquille Forest.

(A) Prior to entering such an agreement, and as a condition of maintaining such an agreement, the Secretary must find that the Coquille Tribe has entered into a binding memorandum of agreement (MOA) with the State of Oregon, as required under paragraph 7.

(B) The authority of the Secretary to rescind the Indian self-determination agreement shall not be encumbered.

(C) Where both the State of Oregon and the United States are regulating, nothing herein shall be construed to alter their respective authorities.

(D) To the extent that Federal law authorizes the Coquille Indian Tribe to assume regulatory authority over an area, nothing herein shall be construed to enlarge or diminish the tribe's authority to do so under such law.
